However, the EU has improved its relations with Turkey and the prospect of a free trade agreement is on the table. In the meantime, the EU tries to pressure Russia to respect the rights of the de facto opposition Syrian Kurdish-controlled territories in Syria. As Aleppo falls to the opposition, the humanitarian situation grows increasingly dire. UN aid groups warn that violence against civilians in the country is increasing. Meanwhile, the situation in Yemen, Libya, Iraq and Afghanistan remains unstable. The relationship between the two countries and "the Syrian Arab Republic" in general to the EU remains strained.
